Collholme Ratepayers Meeting Well Attended --Councillors Returned

The Annual Meeting of the ratepayers of the Collholme Municipal District was held in the Collholme School on Saturday, February 17. When the largest gathering of ratepayers in the history of the district, met to discuss the administration, financial statement and other problems pertaining to the municipality.

Mr. Faulkner, who was appointed chairman performed his duties in a very efficient and courteous manner. Mr. Langley as Secretary did likewise.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved by the ratepayers.

The Reeve, S. W. Warren, at the request of the chairman gave his report covering the work and administration of the council during the year, while the members of the council spoke in regard to their respective divisions. The financial statement was then read and adopted by the meeting, with very little discussion.

Considerable interest was displayed in regard to a motion to adopt an 8 hour day in municipal road work. The council requested that in future, 8 hours be termed a day.

The retiring councillors, Messrs Warren, Young and Patz were all returned by acclamation, while Mr. Laughlin was appointed to fill the vacancy in Division 4 for a year in place of Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Laughlin has left the district.

The Reeve on the motion of the meeting was asked to address the gathering in regard to the question of a flat rate over the entire district for educational purposes, he outlined the advantages which would be effected if this system could be adopted. After considerable discussion, a motion to table the question for a year and asking that a tangible plan be brought before the ratepayers at the next annual meeting.

A motion asking the Provincial Government to furnish feed for spring work, also seed grain, was passed by the meeting. After which a motion to adjourn one of the most constructive and interesting meetings held in the M. D. of Collholme was in order.

Peyton News

The card party and dance held at Laughlin school last Friday evening proved to be a good success. Prize winners for the evening were ladies first Louise Vanderberg, gents, August Vanderberg. Consola shared by Edith Marr and Jack Gingles.

Edith Marr spent the week end at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. E. Gingles.

J. W. Sellers attended the Pool meeting at Chinook Sat. and also gave the delegates report to the U. G. G. members. He was noticed later dining in the Chinook hotel, what's the attraction Wesley?

A number of young people of the district spent a most enjoyable time on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Gingles.

Jas Aitken spent the week end in the Swan district.

We regret to learn that Mr. J. C. Bayley is still laid up with his injured knee.

Tuxis Boys Hold Banquet In Church

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 14 at 7 p.m., the Tuxis Boys of Chinook banqueted their mothers and Dads in the United Church. The table was set with a sumptuous feast which had been prepared by the Mothers and judging by the contented looks on the Sons and Dads, the Mothers lived up to their usual reputations.

Mr. Robinson proposed a toast to the king, which was responded to by Mr. Woollatt and which was followed by short talks by the Dads present. Mr. Rideout and Mr. Youell vied with each other to see who could hold the floor the longest. A sing song led by Mr. Woollatt was the diversion between speeches, the gathering was also favored with short talks by the Mothers present.

Mr. E. V. Elford, Honorary Pretor of the Tuxis group, was the guest speaker of the evening.

He spoke of his experiences as a Tuxis boy emphasizing the important part the training which he received had played in his life. His speech was an inspiration to the Tuxis boys present, who, in a few years, will be facing life in the world on their own initiative. Judging by the applause which greeted Mr. Elford at the end of his speech it is to be hoped that the boys also the Dads will long bear in mind his well chosen speech.

Mr. Gilbertson entertained with a Norwegian song, which was much appreciated.

The Mentor Mr. Woollatt, told the boys some of his experiences at College and gave them some very sound advice. After the sing song the boys gave three hearty cheers for their Mothers and Dads which was responded to by them. After the table was cleared the Mothers and Dads engaged in a game of quots which proved very amusing. The Tuxis then challenged their Dads to a game, but sorry to relate emerged on the short end of a 205-185 score.

Things We Would Like to Know After Attending the Banquet

Who cut the pies in quarters? If Mr. Youell hopes that this movement will spread to the home Is this seconded by Mr. Woollatt?

Who was it that said he was in favor of having many of the banquets?

Where did Mr. Woollatt and Mr. Rideout learn the art of throwing quots?

In what conservatory of music did Mr. Gilbertson study for voice culture?

Why did Mr. Woollatt leave his wife at home?

What school of elocution did Mr. Youell attend?

Who shouted "W heehee?"

The regular monthly meeting of the Chinook W.I. will be held Wednesday, Mar. 7th at Mrs. Chapman's home. The hostesses are Mrs. Purple, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Young. The topic—"Education and Better Schools" will be taken by Miss Parker's committee.

The School Of Experience

People learn their most important and valuable lessons in the school of experience. It is a school that opens at birth and closes with death, and there are no vacation periods. We are passing through some experience at all times, and we are imbibing knowledge, leaving something as a result. It may be that, like lessons learned in school and from books, we may forget some of the lessons of experience, for a time at any rate; even more frequently we may ignore and neglect the lessons which experience has taught us; nevertheless they have left their imprint upon our minds and have influenced our lives for weal or for woe.

It not infrequently happens that a short, sharp lesson is learned never to be forgotten from some one brief experience. Something enters our lives—it may be a great sorrow or a great joy—which then and there alters the whole course of our lives. On the other hand, it is often the case that in order that a lesson may be effectively learned, the experience which is teaching it may be greatly prolonged in order that it may be impressed upon us in the way that is necessary. And while individuals may learn a lesson from some experience very quickly, it is usually a much slower process for communities and nations to so learn and profit by experience.

Consider the present economic upheaval throughout the world, now continuing into its fifth or sixth year. Some people, no doubt, learned valuable lessons from it during the first twelve-month of its duration; others have learned as the months and years have gone by. Communities and nations have learned some lessons, and some have, of course, learned more and faster than others. All are still learning; learning perhaps a little more thoroughly now than they were two and three years ago. But it is quite evident that the nations have not yet grasped, or at any rate accepted, the great truths which the Great Depression has been teaching any more than they grasped, or accepted, the great truths which the Great War should have impressed upon all mankind.

Possibly it is because man has not yet learned the lessons, or at least accepted the teachings of the existing depressed economic state, that the depression is so greatly prolonged and still continues. There are certain lessons which the nations of mankind must learn, and not only learn but put their learning and knowledge into practical effect, before the depression will be overcome. The longer the depression continues the more forcibly it is teaching those lessons. They are lessons being learned through a bitter experience, but it is the stupidity and unwillingness of man to learn obvious lessons that is prolonging that bitter experience.

The four years of death, horror, suffering and destruction of the Great War, together with its aftermath of trouble and losses, of which the present chaotic economic and financial situation is a part, have not taught the nations the utter futility of war. Surely they appreciate the teachings of the Great War and its outcome, but they absolutely will not take the lesson to themselves, with the result that the world is trembling to-day on the very brink of another terrible war.

But while the nations may thus be much slower than individuals to learn lessons they should learn and profit by, people in all countries are learning and in time their thoughts and their influence will direct the nations. It is, of course, much more difficult to bring a whole group or nation to accept a great truth as the result of experience than it is to get a few individuals to accept it. Individuals are now in ever increasing numbers learning valuable lessons as a result of the experiences through which they are passing,—lessons which will not be easily forgotten but which will leave their impress on several generations to come. It will take time to translate their views into community and national life and action. That evolutionary process, nevertheless, is under way.

It is inevitable, too, that out of the experiences of a transition period such as the present, many ideas and theories will be advanced in all sincerity and seriousness as the solution of existing ills. It has always been so in all transition periods in the world's history, and it will probably continue to be so at all times of marked change. The mental processes of people are quickened by the experiences through which they are passing, but in numerous cases this merely results in the adoption of faddist or extreme ideas, and these, advanced as cure-alls for existing ills, are, generally speaking, mutually destructive the one of the other.

Clear thinking, therefore, is one of the most essential requirements in times like the present. Our experiences should not lead us not to act hastily. They should recall to us that we made great mistakes in the mounting days of prosperity, and they should put us on guard against committing other and equally great mistakes under the influence of a great depression. It is never wise to reach definite and far-reaching decisions beyond recall when we are either on the mountain peaks or at the bottom of the deep valleys.

In a word, in the school of experience we should learn that it is most important, vitally so, that we order and control our thinking powers, and apply them to the practical problems at hand in full realization of the fact that, while there is no short cut to betterment and perfection, betterment can be obtained by practical, unselfish, unceasing effort, and that the ideal, as an ideal will, if and when realized, prove to be but a stepping stone to a still nobler ideal.

Marvels of the Human Eye

By F. M. CROWE, Optometrist-Optician, Calgary

NO. 2—SOME OF THE PARTS AND THEIR USES

The Choroid is the second or pigment layer and is composed principally of blood vessels for the nourishment of the eye, the pigment color acting as a protection against excessive light which might otherwise affect the sensitive Retina. People who lack sufficient pigment are much troubled by "flashes." An Albino is a person devoid of pigment. The Choroid layer lies between the Sclerotic and the Retina, all three being closely attached.

The Crystalline Lens (hereafter referred to as the Lens) hanging vertically behind the pupil is transparent, elastic and even when in a state of rest, very biconvex in shape and is capable of assuming still greater convexity. This characteristic is known as "Accommodation" which is most important because it is this property which enables us to see at different distances. Accommodative power is at its height at the age of twelve and steadily diminishes as we grow older. At the age of about forty the average person has lost so much of the Accommodative power that he needs glasses to focus at the reading distance although vision may be perfect farther off at any age. Hence the necessity for wearing glasses for close work after middle life is due to a natural change common to man. The Lens is made up of many layers as is an onion which accounts for its elasticity when acted upon by the Ciliary muscle which is attached to the outside edge of the Capsule which surrounds the Lens. Sometimes the Lens becomes hard, cloudy and opaque and in this condition it is known as a Cataract. Lens or Cataract induced by various causes such as Bright's Disease, blows, extreme old age and occupations requiring excessive heat and light. Contrary to a common belief, Cataracts never grow on the outside of the eyeball. So much misunderstanding exists regarding Cataracts that the matter will be discussed fully in a future article. The Retina is the inner lining and the most delicate, sensitive and important part of the eye. It is really a spreading out of the Optic Nerve which connects the eye with the brain where seeing is actually accomplished. Although as thin as tissue paper, the Retina is composed of many layers each having its special function. The mysterious operation of the Retina is, generally speaking, a sealed book. It is very sensitive to light impression, and may be likened to the plate on a camera. All objects are focused on the Retina upside down and we see them as we do because our brains have so interpreted them from this fancy.

Exhibition Is Unusual

Many Interesting Exploration Relics Being Shown in London

The polar exhibition opened recently by the Royal United Service Institution in London is attracting many visitors for the exhibits include exploration relics from the days of Frobenius and Cook to those of Scott and Shackleton. Among them is the camera which took the photographs of the south pole, Amundsen's flag and reckoning which told Scott that he had been forestalled, and the Union Jack which was hoisted at the pole. Another exhibit is the last stock of food carried by Scott and his companions, including the curry powder which Scott found gave him indigestion.

Majority Would Not Work

New York city authorities the other day began an experiment to see just what percentage of street beggars are really "deserving cases." They arrested 63 panhandlers on the streets, investigated them, and offered jobs to those who wanted them. Seven of the 63 were delighted to get the jobs. The other 56 being men who preferred begging to working, immediately were sent to jail.

Dominion Drama Festival

Second Festival To Be Held In The Little Theatre, Ottawa

The second Dominion Drama Festival will be held in the Little Theatre, Ottawa, in the last week of April, when teams from all over the country will present plays in competition for the trophy presented by His Excellency, the Earl of Bessborough, governor general of Canada. During the weeks prior to the festival elimination contests are being held throughout Canada. Rupert Harvey, a distinguished English actor who was the adjudicator at the final competition in Ottawa last year is traveling across the Dominion acting as judge in the various eliminations.

Preliminary competitions are being held at Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Halifax, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Vancouver and other places. In many instances it has been found necessary, so great is the interest aroused to have eliminations prior even to those upon which Mr. Harvey will adjudicate.

From about 120 entrants it will be necessary for the adjudicator to select representatives of all the provinces to compete in the final competition at Ottawa. It is probable that the central committee of the festival will issue sufficient invitations to make a full week of performances in Ottawa.

J. T. Grein, one of the most distinguished figures in the English theatre and a well-known London critic, has been secured as the adjudicator at the final competition.

The stimulus which has been given to the community drama by the inauguration of the festival by His Excellency, the Governor General of Canada, has exceeded the highest hopes. In almost every instance, and despite the difficulty of the times, the older organizations have largely increased memberships and here, there and everywhere new groups are being formed.

Favors Mild Inflation

Adoption of a modified system of codes similar to that used in the United States, mild inflation, raising of commodity prices, state control of business from a modifying and regulating point of view, and clear thinking as a means of returning Canada to an economic state of prosperity were advocated by Premier Brownlee in addressing a banquet of the Alberta provincial board of the Retail Merchants' Association.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis is stunned and Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla decides that she must leave the home of her adopted parents immediately and go to live with Rose, her sister, who is a file clerk in a business house. They decide to take an apartment. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual talent of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. After a conference with Mr. Bowman, Camilla decides to attempt the work. With ideas running riot in her head she goes home and spends the night sketching. In the morning, arriving at her work, she sets out for the agency. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She goes to a happy day. She goes to a happy day.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXII.

Peter detected her electrified manner the moment he saw her, and thought he never had seen Camilla so lovely. He took both her hands in his, gently, and poured his love and adoration into her eyes with his gaze. "Camilla, I can't endure this—sweet agony of living without you any longer."

"Even the agony is sweet!" she asked.

"Yes, because I live every hour in the anticipation of seeing you again." She smiled into his eyes, happily. "Then our plan is a huge success. That is just the way I wanted it to be. Don't you see, dear, if I were with you always, there would be no sweet agony of anticipation? And that would be tragic—very tragic for us. Half of the joy of life is anticipation."

He sighed with resignation. "Why do I argue with you about coming to me when I know I can't take care of you?"

"We're not going to argue about it, Peter. That's all settled. Besides, tonight is a very special celebration. I can't wait another minute to tell you my secret, so let's go in and sit down where we can talk. Do you suppose we can get the same table we had on our wedding night? This occasion is almost as important."

"It must be important, if it makes you so beautiful." His eyes did not leave her face, as he tucked her hand into his arm and they entered through the gracious doorway of Charm Cottage again.

Camilla glanced up from the menu delightedly. "Here is the same special menu we had for our wedding dinner, Peter."

"Then that's what we're having. Okay?"

"It couldn't be better." "Two special dinners," he said to the waiting waitress. "Now tell me," he folded his arms on the table and faced Camilla eagerly. "You have a position?"

"Oh, yes, but that isn't the best part of it," she exclaimed. "Let me begin at the very first and tell you everything!"

He laughed agreement. "Suspenses, thrills and all. It promises to be dramatic."

It was, he had to admit when she had finished. His heart swelled with pride for her success and ached a little with regret—not because he envied her, but because she was so exquisite and precious that he wanted to claim his right to take care of her and spare her all the scolding demands and sacrifices which even so promising a future involved.

He knew that this sudden achievement flooded the whole world with a golden light for her, like the varicolored spotlights on the stage enhance soiled costumes, worn property and faulty makeup.

She had yet to learn that for every victory there is some defeat, for every joy some disappointment and heartaches, for every task achieved endless hours of toil and anxiety. He knew that Camilla would meet these challenges gallantly, of course. But he wished that he might spare her any of the disillusion and could sort out for her only the sparkling gems of genuine worth, sparing her the bitter disappointment of synthetic substitutes which prevailed their majority in everything that belonged to life.

Camilla deserved to be treasured like a precious jewel, herself, yet she belonged to him and he could not lift a finger to protect her from the slightest need or anxiety. Rather, he had added to these. A fierce determination burned within him while he watched her happy face. He would give his soul to keep her happy like that, always, he thought.

Mrs. Hoyt accepted the news of Camilla's position and her departure from her home with resigned cheerfulness. She had not gained her objective, but to her way of thinking, Camilla would live to see the day when she would regret her rash determination to be independent and master of her own destiny.

In Mrs. Hoyt's past experience, youth profited by the wisdom of its elders or reaped the consequences of its folly. But hers was a mind that dwelt in its past in anecdotes, social registers, inherited fortunes and blue-blooded connections.

Her mind obstinately denied what her eyes saw: that proud names made ignominious and supported by plebeian worth, the rapid rise of a social order which recognized ability above class, established fortunes tottering by the hour while new ones of magic-banished growth replaced them, life that loved and laughed and snuggled its fingers at amug convention.

She had been trying to fit a product of this modern age into the pattern of two generations before. No wonder she had failed to accomplish her purpose. Strange, that she had selected the child of foreign parentage to replace those denied her. Just another inconsistency of human emotions, that the beautiful little child had appealed so strongly to her motherless heart.

"I hope you won't think I am ungrateful if I leave you before the end of the summer," Camilla inquired anxiously, after she had listened with calm patience to her foster mother's surprised comments upon her new position.

"But I don't see why you should. If you have to work in an office all day, it would be much easier for you to stay here until you are adjusted. For that matter, you need not leave here at all this year. We'd really like to have you with us, even if you are working for yourself." Her compromise was offered with more willingness than she would have admitted to herself.

"That's very kind of you, but I prefer to do all the adjusting now and not over with. I really could not feel as if I were independent so long as I lived here with you, in such circumstances as my salary could not afford. Besides, Rose needs me for awhile. I believe we can do a lot for each other while I am waiting for Peter to become established."

Mrs. Hoyt sighed heavily. "I'm afraid, Camilla, that never will be. A man has to have more than ambition to succeed, and Peter's opportunities are so limited. I don't know why."

"Please, let's not go over all that again," Camilla entreated. "I know why I married Peter, and I'd marry him again, even if I thought he had no chance. But he has. He does have more than ambition. He has talent, which will win out sooner or later."

Mrs. Hoyt's griefed eyes still accused her gravely while she resumed her tolerant acceptance of the situation. "Just where do you propose to live, Camilla. I hope you will consider that you have been a Hoyt for most of your life. Already she was reaching out tentacles into Camilla's future life, in an attempt to order it according to her desires, as she had done in the past.

"I can't very well consider anything except the total of mine and Rose's salaries," she protested. "After all I'm sorry—but it was you who insisted on leaving from that of Hoyt, even before I became Camilla Anson. That is what I shall have to be—a working girl and the wife of a genius. I'll look for an apartment as near town as rents will permit, so that we can save time for house-keeping. Somewhere in the sixties or seventies, probably."

"But that's an impossible location," objected the horrified Mrs. Hoyt.

"How, impossible?"

"Why—so very common and unattractive. How could you endure living in such surroundings?"

"I don't expect to gratify my beauty-loving eyes for awhile. If we have a clean room in an agreeable atmosphere, it will do until we can afford better. That may be even sooner than we hope," she added optimistically, pulling a wide-brimmed Panama hat over her short black curls and tucking in the curious looks that persisted in peeping curiously into her face and shining eyes.

"But I must hurry along and find just such a place to-day, so we can get settled tomorrow, rest Sunday and be ready to work on Monday. I'll see you at dinner."

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

You are "feeling punk" simply because your liver isn't pumping the daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and assimilation are both hampered, and your entire system is being poisoned. What you need is a liver stimulant. Something that goes faster than bile, mixed water, oil, laxative candy or shaving foam or anything which only moves the bowels—without the real cause of trouble, your liver.

Petition Parliament For Right To Secede From Commonwealth

Unique in history of the British Empire will be the petition to the King and Imperial Parliament setting forth the case for secession of the state of Western Australia from the Australian Commonwealth.

This petition is now being considered and prepared for submission to the legislature of Western Australia. It follows the state-wide referendum of nearly a year ago when the voters registered a majority of almost two to one in favor of secession.

A special secession committee is also preparing a 300-word report on the question. The petition, when approved by the state legislature, will be forwarded to His Majesty and to the house of lords and house of commons in London.

Western Australia, with a population of 440,000 and area of 975,000 square miles, ascribes its acute financial difficulties to disabilities under the federal constitution. The state's desire for secession is increased by her geographical position, separated as she is from other parts of the Commonwealth by a thousand miles of desert.

Little Helps For This Week

"I will be glad and rejoice in Thy mercy, for Thou hast considered my trouble. Thou has known my soul in adversity."—Psalm 31:7.

All by Thee is ordered, chosen, planned. Each drop that fills my daily cup, Thy hand. Precious for its none else can understand. And all is known to Thee. —A. L. Newton.

God knows us through and through. Not the most secret thought we hide from ourselves is hidden from Him. As then we know ourselves through and through we come to see ourselves as God sees us, and then we can catch some glimpse of His designs with us, how each ordering of His providence, each checking of our desires, each failure of our hopes is just fitted for us, and for something in our own spiritual state which others know not of, and of which till then we knew not. Until we come to this knowledge we must take all in faith, believing, although we know not, the goodness of God towards us. As we know ourselves we thus far know God.—E. B. Puey.

Dean Brock Of B.C. Elected Member Of Geographical Society

Dean R. V. Brock of the faculty of applied science, University of British Columbia, has been elected a corresponding member of the Geological Society of China. Membership is honorary and is conferred only upon distinguished geologists who have made contributions to China.

For more than ten years, Dean Brock has been active at University of B.C. where he has been making a geological survey of the island of Hongkong at the request of the British government.

Dr. Brock and Dr. S. J. Schofield began the work in 1923. It was carried on during the next two years by Dr. M. Y. Williams and the late Dr. W. L. Uglow. Dean Brock returned for the winter 1926-27 and last year had leave of absence from the university for several months in order to complete the task.

Apple Surprise Pudding

5 tablespoons Benson's Corn Starch
1 cup water
1 well-beaten egg
6 medium-sized apples, sliced thin
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Raisins
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 tablespoon butter.

Cook Corn Starch blended with salt and water in a double boiler with Corn Syrup until thick, or for about 20 minutes. Add well-beaten egg. Place sliced apples in pudding dish, cover with raisins and sprinkle with sugar well mixed with spices. Dot over with butter. Pour the hot sauce over all and bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender when pricked with a fork. Serve hot or cold with lemon or apple sauce, or garnish with whipped cream.

Radicals Are Warned

Seditious Persons Advised To Give Manitoba A Wide Birth

Persons whose activities are seditious were warned to give Manitoba a wide berth by Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general, in the Manitoba legislature. Mr. Major's warning came in the debate on the speech from the throne.

"Agitators who called themselves Communists, and others who professed to be ultra-nationalists were all cut from the same cloth," Mr. Major said. "They had for their aim the disruption of law and order and the destruction of government."

Collholme Reeve Gives Interesting Speech At Ratepayers Meeting

Mr. Chairman, Ratepayers of the Collholme Municipal District—It is again my privilege as Reeve of your Municipal District to bring for your consideration the afternoon a brief review of the work of the council during the past year, which, due to climatic conditions and the low prices obtained for farm products, has been the most discouraging in its history. At your last annual meeting the council's action in regard to collection of taxes by seizure of crop caused considerable discussion and some adverse criticism, the action of the council has been fully justified during the past year. We have met the increased demands on our municipal funds without any loan from the government for this purpose and have been able to give the services in the way of education with a loan of $1500. This would have been impossible if we had not imposed collection.

At the court of revision there were a large number of appeals against assessment, most of them were adjusted to the satisfaction of both the ratepayer and the district.

We have not yet been informed of the council's appeal for a general reduction of the districts assessment, but the Dept of Municipal Affairs have notified us recently that taxes will be levied on the 1929 assessment for 1934.

Early in the summer we were faced with the problem of destruction of grasshoppers and working in conjunction with the Provincial Government establishing a poison mixing station in Chinook. Considerable expense was incurred in righting this pest and due to the fact that so much vacant land surrounded the crops and the impossibility of poisoning this large area the results obtained were unsatisfactory.

Later in the summer the council realized, that owing to a total crop failure, the need for relief in regard to food, cloths and fuel, also feed for livestock would demand the expenditure of such an amount of money that it would be beyond the districts power to finance. Co operating with surrounding districts a meeting was held in Chinook, attended by representatives of the districts, also by officials of the Provincial Government. A system of relief was adopted, financed by the Provincial and Dominion governments, each paying a third share of the cost, the municipalities being responsible for the other third.

There has been some criticism in regard to the disbursement of this relief; Some doubt justified. Your council has tried to be fair in dealing with the individual applications. Seeing that no one suffered any undue hardships from the want of fuel, food and cloths, at the same time remembering it was public funds they were administering and also when conditions improved would have to be repaid by the individuals receiving it. In regards to amount paid the Provincial Government has sole control.

The relief in the way of fodder for livestock is administered by the Dept of Agriculture in the amount given and the distribution your council has no responsibility.

The consolidation of taxes act passed at the last session of the legislature has no doubt encouraged the payment of taxes that were in arrears and enabled mortgage companies and individuals to retain land that would otherwise have reverted to the district.

It has thrown additional work on the secretary, and in passing I would like to say a word of appreciation of the secretary, Mr. R. B. Langley, he has cheerfully undertaken the vast amount of work entailed by the distribution of relief and fodder without any remuneration from the district other than his salary.

This afternoon may I suggest that you as ratepayers consider the question of economy in taxation especially in regard to education and discuss the advisability of abolishing the existing school district boundaries and imposing of a flat rate over the municipal district for educational purposes. The purchasing of feed and seed for spring work and other matters pertaining to your M. D. will take a large amount of your time this afternoon.

In closing let me hope that conditions financially and otherwise will be more favorable to residents of this Municipal District during the coming year.

Thank you

Letter of Interest

From Lorne Proudfoot

Edmonton, Alberta,
February 22, 1934

N. F. Marcy, Esq.
Chinook, Alberta.

Dear Norris;

Re School Fairs.

The Department of Agriculture are including in their estimates for this year an amount of money sufficient to carry on the school fairs on somewhat the same basis as last year, seed will be provided, one judge will be supplied and I am hoping some little assistance may be given in securing the Secretary's supplies. For some years the Department of Education gave a number of books as special prizes, these books, seven in number, cost approximately 65 cents a piece. No appropriation for them was included in last year's estimates by the Department of Education and none in their estimates for this year as yet. We will discuss this matter with the Minister of Education and see what can be done.

I am pleased to learn that notwithstanding the fact that the usual grants were not available last year, some 95 fairs were held. This shows that the people of the province appreciate this activity very much and encourages us to hope that as soon as more normal conditions return, the activity will be placed on the same basis as before.

With best wishes, I remain.

Yours sincerely,

Lorne Proudfoot.

Farmers Attention!

GRASSHOPPER CAMPAIGN, 1934

Careful surveys during the fall of 1933 indicated a wide spread infestation of grasshoppers in Southern Alberta for 1934. The area affected extends from the United States border north to the 50th parallel line of the C. P. R. and west from the Saskatchewan border to the Macleod Calgary line of the C. P. R. and the Calgary Three Hills Mirror line of the C. N. R.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS

Will be held in the near future to discuss control measures for the coming spring season. Farmers in the area described are urged to watch for posters and keep in touch with their municipal organization or with Department of Agriculture field men or with the Dept at Edmonton, for information and advice.
